We see so much information and data about how the market crash is incoming but sometimes it is hard to see it in the real world. Yea, we have seen it through our grocery store bills and at the gas pump, but today I saw it in a little more discrete, although more reassuring way.

I have flown with Frontier a bunch and have never had any issues with my personal bag item size. It definitely is larger than the small backpack they want you to bring on, but not obviously too big. Just moments ago I saw for the first time them checking every single bag and almost delaying the plane to do so. I and a bunch of other people had to pay $100 for our carry on.

Times must be tough for Frontier. Market crash incoming. GME is the way. Stay safe and DRS ■
