

Title: I'd like to buy my brother a share for his birthday, but he's not really that interested in the stock market

I could just buy one in my account and hold onto it for him, but I wanted him to have some control over it if he chooses to. I honestly doubt he would jump through the hoops of DRSing himself, and he's probably end up forgetting his password and losing it somehow. Any ideas on ways I could safely give him a GME share without him having to do any work?
