

Title: Proof of Brokers pulling Shares out of Computershare without Consent?

Author: KnowItBrother99

Created 2022-09-12 21:42:14 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/xcp2u0/proof_of_brokers_pulling_shares_out_of/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/xcp2u0/proof_of_brokers_pulling_shares_out_of/

I have seen posts about gme shares being pulled from Computershare TO Brokers.

1. I have not seen proof of this, does anyone have proof / a link to a post WITH proof that this has happened?

2. I called Computershare to ask if I could put a security measure in place to make sure Computershare contacts me directly before accepting a request from a broker to withdraw my shares. Answer: No.

3. I then asked, well what is stopping my broker from removing shares from my Computershare account? Answer: Your brokers security Policy

4. What information do they need to pull shares out of Computershare account? Answer: They would need your information (meaning all the info you would normally provide a broker name, address, and possibly your Computershare account number).

5. I explained the whole reason I have DRSd (and possible others) is that I do not trust the system as it is, and as I AM the share holder with Computershare (not streetname) I want to be contacted before any shares are pulled and my explicit consent given via a security code. I suggested a simple notification should be sent to email/computeshare account about brokers trying to pull shares, and a shareholder should have to put in a simple password that ONLY the share holders knows to allow this. I asked for this to be passed to her supervisor as well.

6. My thought process is sure, maybe not all brokers pull shares out, but what if one massive broker (lets say Fidelity) has a `Glitch` at that pivotal moment and it impacts everything (the same way not all brokers, but one giant APEX shut off the buy button). Unprecedented things happen all the time, so if you have the same concern as my it would probably be a good idea to raise this concern as this could be a truly major illegal thing that happens that results in ZERO impactful consequence (like shutting of a buy button)