

Title: Ryan's true motivation for his Teddy "stonk diversifying!" cartoon

Author: Accomplished_Car3953

Created 2022-11-25 04:18:00 UTC

Permalink: /r/DDintoGME/comments/z43n1m/ryans_true_motivation_for_his_teddy_stonk/

Url: https://www.reddit.com/r/DDintoGME/comments/z43n1m/ryans_true_motivation_for_his_teddy_stonk/

It's so absolutely very simple, most regards won't ever understand it.

Imagine you are responsible for thousands, if not millions of people, holding massive losses because of $GME.

Buying at tops, like many regards do, when the media wants to pump and dump. And then a decent sized amount of regards sell at a bottom, like clockwork, even if the float continually decreases due to DRS.

He probably feels responsible, as if when you hit a car by accident, the actual reckless driver is guilty but nevertheless very hurt in the process, and the driver who crossed a green light feels responsible for the dumb driver's mismanagement of their life and their reckless driving, instead of facing the real causes of the actual pain, which has nothing to do with the poor driver who followed the rules.

It wasn't Ryan who pumped or dumped anything, but so, so many people blame him for it.

Ryan didn't do anything truly wrong in his life, from what is available from public knowledge.

Real-Life Ryan Cohen, not some dumbass redditor, is worried and blaming himself about the mental health of people investing 10k in GME at 50$, then it falls, and the guy becomes mad at "Incompetent dumbass Ryan Cohen who only wants money".

"Had he diversified, he would not have lost all the money at Ryan's fault".

I actually meant "Citadel's fault". But I will follow some of the regarded dumbass take the media has presented to the average investor, so I'll keep blaming the man who created a true NFT marketplace, for the creators. I'm actually surprised on that one.

January 2021 "Ape" simply for the reason of destroying the illusion of financial system we have. And I believe a non-shortened, passion-driven video and online-videogame store has the potential to thrive in the future, not the overshorted abberation of a stock that the DTC owns in multiples of 7, and should be transferred to ComputerShare. Probably a stock more shorted then many other brick-and-mortar giants. Gamestop, in a sense, is a former giant, and has the potential to regain its former presence, if the stock is allowed organic growth.

AND, OF COURSE - PLEASE DON'T SELL. ALL THE NEWS AND IDIOTIC TAKES ON RYAN ARE UNINFORMED OR PESSIMISTIC FUD.

I WILL ALWAYS DRS ALL MY GME SHARES, I SHALL ONLY BUY GME SHARES, AND I WILL BUY VERY LONG DATED CALL OPTIONS WITH ABOUT 15% OF MY RECURRING INVESTMENT, THE REST GOING TO DRS GME.

PEOPLE WANT YOU TO STOP DRSING, OR EVEN SELLING, PLEASE, FIGHT FIRE WITH DOUBLE CS DRS FIRE, BURN KENNY'S ASS, PLEASE, REGISTER 100% AND LET THEM COVER JUST THE PUBLIC ENORMOUS 30% SHORT INTEREST THAT IS PERHAPS THE TIP OF A CRAZY SYTHETIC CALL-PUT TRADE, WHERE YOU HAVE PROOF OF OWNERSHIP, BUT A PIECE OF PAPER THAT SAYS YOU CAN SELL A PEARL FOR 10.000$ DOESN'T MEAN YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO SELL A SUPPOSED PEARL IOU INTO THE LIT MARKET, AND REBUYING IT IN A CLANDESTINE PEARL MARKET, FOR A LOWER PRICE, WITHOUT INFORMING THE REAL MARKET THAT PEOPLE ARE BUYING SO MANY PEARLS.

OF COURSE, IF SHORTS DIDN'T ILLEGALLY AND IMPOSSIBLY GO OVER 140% in JANUARY 2021, YOU COULD ARGUE THEY COULD ACTUALLY SELL SHARES AT THE LIT MARKET, AND BUY THEM IN DARK-POOLS.

FIDELITY APES AND CS APES KEEP BUYING, THEY CAN'T REBUY A SHARE IF PEOPLE ARE BUYING INSTEAD OF SELLING!

End of rant, hope you enjoyed reading.