Tennessee Minor Child's Legal Name Change

In the United States, you generally have a legal right to change the name of your minor child at any time, provided you have a cause that is deemed appropriate and legal. You cannot, for example, change their name to avoid judgments, debts, or to commit fraud. Additionally, changing a minor's name is not the same as adoption. If you intend to legally change the name of your minor child, you must file a petition with your local court. Here's the general procedure you'll need to follow when legally changing the name of your minor child. Please be aware that the process can slightly vary from state to state.
