

Title: Treasury and banks preventing people from cashing out bonds?

Author: json492

Created 2022-10-15 14:21:58 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/y4p7uc/treasury_and_banks_preventing_people_from_cashing/

Url:

https://www.reddit.com/r/GME/comments/y4p7uc/treasury_and_banks_preventing_people_from_cashing/

Hi all, I'm unable to post in superstonk but have a question that could spark some conversation.

I have some bonds that were given to me at birth that are finally matured and ready to cash out. I need to update my bank info to cash out, however, I need an official bank seal notary to do so. Come tom find out, all banks stopped doing those notarys this year because of "fraud." The banks tell me to go else where, such as UPS. The treasury doesn't accept those notarys though

With bond yields spiking and the treasury possibly being way overleveraged with their terrible bets, could this be a way the treasury is preventing people from cashing out mature bonds cause they need or don't have the money?

Be interesting to hear your or superstonks thoughts on this.

Also, does anyone know where to get an official bank seal notary?

Wish I could cash those to DRS more gme.