

Title: Unpopular Opinion: What used to be is no longer...Purple Circles

Author: disoriented_llama

Created 2022-10-18 09:12:55 UTC

Permalink: /r/TheGloryHodl/comments/y71tss/unpopular_opinion_what_used_to_be_is_no/

Url: /r/Superstonk/comments/q4y668/unpopular_opinion_what_used_to_be_is_no/

Linked Post Content:

I'm not gonna lie, this entire push to lock up our shares in Computershare is interesting.

8 months before the great purple circle arrived on nearly EVERY post...it was the ethos on this sub that, "telling apes to do anything should be considered FUD until confirmed and proven otherwise"...now, that's not a word-for-word quote taken from the good book of GME but a paraphrasing of it.

So, I just have to ask...why?

Why is this mass pull to get apes to jump through a VERY SPECIFIC hoop so much more palatable than the other forms of manipulation that was spewed out by the shills?

and before you shill on me, Criand is NOT Ryan...the Chair-Man himself is not stupid and would not leave an identifiable cyber foot-print...that being said, why are so many apes so willing so fast?

This is just an opinion but I want to hear reasons that don't revolve around "triggering the moass" or "locking up the shares"...both of which were never necessary before this DRS campaign hit this sub.

Are there any besides that?

Here's my concern...purple circles are drowning out the sub...now to anyone who knows what they are doing, navigating the sub for DD isn't that difficult, but to the absolutely-fuckin-necessary-for-moass-FOMO-crowd, it is.

I AM NOT AGAINST DRS ...it makes total sense but what doesn't is the blind devotion to react to this WITHOUT ANY PROOF FROM GME (FROM GME PPL, NOT MEME INTERPRETATIONS, FROM GME).

My mind is untrusting and when I see a group that was, for nearly a year, impervious to being told what to do without tacit confirmation from official sources, DD, and cross-checked by multiple mods - this raises my eyebrows.

I DO NOT THINK COMPUTERSHARE is SUS or FUD, they are LEGIT...my concern is this...

What if DRS matters not? (seriously, indulge me with that hypothetical)...wouldn't it be easier than fuck for Citadel, Point72, and that other gremlin's ass-hat hedge fund to launch a cyber attack against Computershare itself?

Remember, NO ONE KNOWS HOW LONG THE MOASS WILL LAST OR HOW HIGH (actual math ppl) GME WILL OR CAN GO...The DD has proved that this GME situation has NEVER happened before and we know that all the numbers (RSI, actual # of synthetics, etc.) necessary to predict these things are not available to us.

THE SEC is not on our side? is it possible the SHF's can manipulate the markets once MOASS begins?

Do we know if Computershare can even handle the HUGE amount of share transfers once this begins? what if they are hit by hacker bs?

\*AGAIN, IM NOT SHITTING ON ANY DD OR THE DRS SENTIMENT\* (just asking what if).

It's all just strange, for nearly a year we have resisted this kind of mass adoption...I really wonder if this entire Computershare is a pit the SHF's have dug, covered with the promise of eliminating synthetics shares, waiting for as many apes to jump in so that they can fuck with the Computershare servers instead of the ones held up by trillion dollar brokers like Fidelity.

Just looking for a discussion - newer apes may not feel the same kind of distrust that I do and thats cool but you older apes...come on now, you feel it in the back of your teeth (no, its not the drip from that fat bump of DD you just did), something is sus af about the purple circle.