So anyone paying attention could say they short the etfs to get at gme indirectly hence basket stocks well if they bought puts on the rest of the basket and rapid shorted multiple etfs over and over is like putting water on a grease fire if they buy gme to close short on etf gme go boom! If they continue to short through etfs because no retail shares available to be loaned, market as a whole can't go up because they shorted whole market through etfs therefore they can't increase collateral or make money until a giant crash. If they can't make money they change the rules! remember Melvin was just going to restart fund to reset bonuses so they get paid before returning original investment. Market crash is to remove value from propped up prices, and return value from people forced to buy in against their shorts
