So Looping faced a DDoS attack today which brought their wallet down for a while. What's to say that when GME skyrockets that the hedge funds send a DDoS at ComputerShare to keep us from selling at phone number price until they can scheme a way to bring the price back down? Does anyone know the security level of CS? We already know the brokers will take away the sell button, so what would stop them from running such an attack when we rocket? Just my thoughts on the situation.
