I have been thinking about the weekend FUD around Book vs. Plan GME shares at Computershare, and I believe that this is an attempt by the powers that be to get Apes to cancel their automatic buys. As has been shared repeatedly in the last few days, when you go through the process of moving your shares to Book, you actually cancel any automatic buys you have in the system. While a lot of Apes will probably go back in and set up a new automatic buy once the process has completed, there are undoubtedly Apes that are currently on auto buys that will not set them up again after Booking their shares. I think this is the goal with this FUD, so don't fall for it! In my experience, automatic buying through Computershare is the single easiest way to stack up DRS'd shares, so if that is your goal, keep the auto buys coming!
