

Title: Let's show the GME family on the frontline that their work in the stores is massively appreciated, especially during the chaos of Black Friday♥■

Author: THE-006

Created 2022-11-23 18:30:54 UTC

Permalink: /r/GME/comments/z2wo16/lets_show_the_gme_family_on_the_frontline_that/

Url: <https://i.redd.it/34fs9qylcs1a1.jpg>

r/GameStop
u/315retro • 48m

Little gift for my store?

Question

Hey guys I'd like to bring my store a little something for always being helpful to me and for working what I'm sure is a God awful black Friday.

I know this is highly subjective and probably a stupid question but what would you guys suggest? I was thinking a dozen donuts but that excludes people with diabetes and I know that is fairly common. I was thinking a pizza but idk who wants pizza early in the morning besides me, and then there's a gluten thing. I was thinking coffee but not everyone drinks coffee.

So I guess if a customer were to bring you something what would you like? I figure donuts are my best chance because they stay good and don't need to be heated up since they'll all be busy and might not have time to check them out until later.

Vote

1

Share

