This popped in to my head the other day.....

What if it wasn't just greedy fucks trying to keep power and money all for themselves? These are funds. Sure, they make a profit and make money off the game, but maybe it's worth looking at where all these funds get their money from in the end?

I wonder how many of these fucks are fronts for money laundering? $100B/yr for coke alone, these are huge markets and what better way to launder money than in a completely broken and corrupt financial system where these assholes have almost no oversight anyways!

We know big banks launder a fuck load of money for these cartels. What if our mayo-boy Kenneth and all these other fucks with these funds (possibly GG included) aren't just worried about going broke. What if they're worried about getting their fingers cut off one by one by some cartel for losing their black-market-money to some fucking regarded poor apes who just like a stonk?!?!?!?

This would explain so much of the desperation. So much money spend on slandering GameStop, slandering retail, all of it. Gets my tits so much more jacked. A wounded animal will do anything to get out of a trap and I think we're gonna see some ankles getting gnawed off :D
