Full text in comments. I have two questions in this #GME bullish article :

Number one : why is there a bullish article on #GME ? I was thinking that may be short positions have been located in a place where they can finally let it run and see how many they can cover within a first range of price. More bullish articles could come with a price anchor. They could start covering slowly.

Number two : the article says 600 billions dollars of cash bleeding next year for GME ? I mean we are talking about 600 millions right ? And this would be base on no improvement on losses. Why this negative false information in a bullish article ?
