I was told that we needed to “wait and see” and to “be patient” for the splividend to do damage to the so called shorts that are on the other side of this trade.

So far its been literally nothing for GME from the splividend. In fact you could say that things got worse afterwards since weve either plummeted, bled slowly or sideways traded since the famous splividend. (Cuz that makes so much sense)

So folks kept telling me to be patient. That theres a T+ date we had to wait for since this happened with Tsla too. That theres a settlement period after the splividend and theeeeeeen apparently the shorts have to do their covering thing.

Apes told me mid october is when this will happen. Sooooo here we are. Were waiting T+ ??

When is it exactly? And whats going to be the next excuse for what happened with the splividend?

If no price action occurs on the T+ I think we may need to start really asking questions and pressuring the major bodies because this means weve been lied to by someone.
