This is not a small problem or a minor ethics issue. It's a part of the corruption at the core of government (plus the revolving door), and we've seen it now in the legislative, judicial and executive branches. It's a problem regardless of party. It's time to end the corruption.

Our system is fundamentally broken and needs major changes. Our government is ineffective at fixing problems because of widespread and massive corruption. And as long as Congress thinks people don't care about these kind of problems, and keep voting for them, nothing will change.
