Halts happen ONLY when the pops happen in GME. The reason for that is that the market makers want to open the door to selling the highs only for their friends. You...the lowly trader...are not invited.

Your only recourse is to wait...and wait...and wait. But wait for what? When it happens, you can't even participate! So you come on message boards to complain. But the people here can't do anything about it. That's just the way this game is played (and rigged).

You buy and hold like a good boy scout...and when your patience and alertness should pay off, the SEC and Wall Street screw you once again.
