What would you say to this guy that claims that if you DRS the float it will make the stock "illiquid" and the stock will be delisted.

Don't just say he's a sh\*ll explain how he is fundamentally wrong

DISCLAIMER

GME is one of my first buys in the stock MARKET. I don't know as much as others

It just sounds like DRS 100 percent of the float would of have been done before with another ticker?

If all shares are out of circulation nobody can trade it nobody can borrow it. So the stock doesn't move in price and no one can buy or sell anymore and it just stays same price down to the cent?
