To anyone who has been, or is considering day trading my favorite stock (gme).

Please remember that by doing so, you are letting shf off the hook and telling them "it's ok."

I know what I hold and what it's worth. And the thought of selling it for less than that is fuckin repulsing.

So please remember, anyone who day trades gme is only helping the enemy.

Ultimately this won't matter once the float is locked, or very close to being locked. Although it does slow down the process and give them more time.

Why would I want to wait longer for my tendies to make a quick buck today.

Can you imagine you sell any at these ridiculously low prices and then it becomes worth brk.a prices? How shitty would that feel.

Don't be that guy who sold 10,000 bitcoins for a pizza. Some paper hands will be that guy unfortunately. And I wouldn't want to be them.

Drs is the way
