Still has 19400 holders of gamestop. This is in relation to 21-22000 which i think was a couple of months post-sneeze. Now Sweden has a kind of account where taxes are paid on holdings rather than earnings. this has been very profitable during periods of low interest. taxation is not firm here. So because of this not many swedes DRS(im assuming). Well in that case there is a negative trend isnt it? Well i dont know about you. But i at least have increased my position way more than the relative decrease in holders (of whom surely some DRSED instead).

So i at least feel very very bullish about this. We have drsed 57-58% But in a hypothetical scenario where there are similar numbers to ava worldwide. I mean.. 10% decrease in holders who likely increased position more than 10% combined with 50% increase in DRS would mean bad news for shorters. Even if my guestimate is way off i cannot possibly imagine it being in the negative(people selling)

Now these are just guesses and a statistician would just shut me down for trying to read something out of this. Well my answer would be im just sharing my way of looking at it. Think for yourselves and draw your own conclusions.
